GERHARDT CALLS 12 WITNESSES IN BABB SHOOTING

Testimony of Farmer's Widow
Believed of Much
Importance

SESSION IS THURSDAY

Five To Testify In Case
Against Walter Hart

Seventeen witnesses will be called before the Pickaway county jury Thursday in its investigation of two cases, the shooting of Weldon Babb, Perry township farmer, and a statutory charge against Walter Hart, E. Logan street.

Twelve witnesses have been called to testify about the shooting of Mr. Babb last week. It is understood considerable interest will center about the testimony of Mrs. Bertha Babb, widow of the slain man. She sought refuge at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Teets, tenants on the Babb farm, after she had been severely beaten by her husband.

Babb was shot as he approached the home. John Teets, 26, who fired at Babb with a shotgun, is being held in the county jail for investigation. No charge has been filed against him.

Coroner C. E. Bowers conducted an inquest Monday, but announced he would render no verdict until he had completed further investigation.

SALTCREEK HIRES HAROLD STROUS TO HEAD SCHOOL

Other high school teachers, including Esther M. Chilcote, Pauline Shryock and Jeannette Hockman, were re-employed.

Gomer Jones was employed as seventh and eighth grade teacher and Alice Barton as first and second grade instructor. Vacancies exist for the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

W.P.A. TO REDUCE ITS RELIEF ROLL BY 16 WORKERS

Transfer of workers on W. P. A. projects, which will result in the dismissal of about 16 men, was announced Wednesday.

A group of 20 employed on the storm sewer project has been transferred to the sanitary sewer work. About 35 were employed on the sanitary program. Approximately one-half of the men on the sanitary sewer job will be dropped, and the balance transferred to grading and drainage work on the Pike Hole bridge improvement.

Arrangements are being worked out to open the bridge project on the Tarlton-Stringtown road soon.

Brady Bandits Escape Posses

Police of Four States Hunting Bandits;
Indiana Man Feared Dying After Bank
Robbers Lay Trap; Legion in Action

LOGANSPOUT, Ind., May 26—(UP)—Officers and volunteers armed with shotguns, machine guns, radios and airplanes patrolled highways of four states today to halt depredations of a gang whose leader boasted he would out-Dillinger the infamous John Dillinger.

Somewhere in Indiana backlands Alfred Brady, James Dalhove and Clarence Lee Shaffer were believed hiding with the $2,500 they scooped from the vaults of the Goodland, Ind., state bank yesterday. One of their guns was the .30 calibre Automatic rifle which pumped 51 slugs in a pursuing state police car, wounding State Policeman Paul Minneman critically and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Craig less seriously.

Each of Indiana's 180 state police officers and 300 special deputies assigned to the hunt was warned "be sure you are armed." State Police Captain Matt Leach at Indianapolis swore: "we'll get that gang if we have to follow them to the end of the earth."

Boundaries Covered
Michigan, Ohio and Illinois state police posted patrols at state boundaries to inspect cars leaving Indiana. Indiana officers scanned highways from four airplanes late yesterday, planned to take off again after daylight if new clues were offered.

Every sheriff's office in Indiana's 92 counties was "on the alert." Possemen chased down dozens of clues without success. At Nyona Lake, 20 miles south of here, 50 American Legionnaires joined deputies in invading a suspected hideout.

Minneman received his fourth blood transfusion in a Logansport hospital where doctors believed he was dying. Officers said they were certain their quarry was the gang led by Brady who boasted, when arrested in Chicago April 29 that he would make the late Dillinger "look like a piker."

Same Car Used
The car used in the Goodland foray bore the same license plates as that used for robbery of the Fairland State bank April 27, in which Brady and Dalhove were definitely identified.

The men invaded the Goodland bank early yesterday, waited 15 minutes for the time lock to open the vault. One of them told Bank Director Lyle Constable to "say hello to Winn for me." This was believed to be Dalhove who came from the same town as the officer, Madison, Ind.

Minneman and Craig pursued the three. At an intersection where the officers slowed down, the gunmen lay in wait behind a church. The slugs from their gun blasted the door from the officers' car, and both men pitched onto the pavement. Minneman was unconscious.

UTILITY, COUNCIL AND MERCHANTS TO MEET AT 8

Conference To Be Held
In Offices Of Power
Company

AGREEMENT IS SOUGHT

All Angles of Contract To Be Discussed

Councilmen, officials of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., and a committee of business men headed by W. E. Wallace, will confer Thursday at 8 p. m. in the electric company's offices E. Main street.

The meeting was announced Wednesday by Frank Marion, chairman of council as a committee on the light rate situation.

Members of the committee representing businessmen and residents attended the last session of council and presented a schedule of rates for consideration. The schedule was lower than the rates offered by the electric company.

The suggestion was made that the meeting of the three groups be called so all angles of the rates could be considered at the same time.

Points of controversy between the utility, council and the businessmen include the length of the contract, the company asking a 10-year agreement, and the rate requested for commercial lighting.

ETHIOPIA HALTS ITALY'S RETURN TO LEAGUE SEAT

GENEVA, May 26—(UP)—Ethiopia again today blocked Italy's return to the League of Nations for an indefinite period.

Although not represented at the league assembly session, Ethiopia retained her membership in the league until next September, at least. The assembly made no decision on Ethiopia's status, only Poland and Mexico referring to the problem today.

The Mexican delegate said his country was prepared to oppose any effort to exclude Ethiopia from her seat at the league. His statement raised the possibility that again in the September meeting the assembly might be unable to remove Ethiopia from the membership list, as demanded by Italy.

Russian Planes Carry Supplies to Explorers

MOSCOW, May 26—(UP)—Three four-motored supply planes flew to the North Pole region today to take supplies to the Russian explorers camped on the ice at the top of the world.

Nine tons of supplies, scientific instruments, foodstuffs, fuel and a tent were taken for the four men who are to remain floating on the polar ice until next spring.

One of the three supply planes landed at the "North Pole" weather station on its 10 foot ice floe at 6:24 a. m. A second landed soon afterward 12½ miles from the pole, and apparently near the camp.

THEFT OF CORN IS ADMITTED BY TRIO OF YOUTHS

Theft of corn from two Pickaway county farmers last December was cleared Wednesday by the sheriff's department when three youths were fined $25 and costs each on charges of petit larceny.

George Rhoades, 19, and Clarence Conrad, 19, both of whom reside along the canal north of the city, were fined for the theft of two sacks of corn valued at $2 from Clarence Peters, Island road, on Dec. 4.

Rhoades and Lonny Keaton, 19, of Weldon avenue were fined for the theft of eight sacks of corn from P. M. McDaniels, Pickaway township, Dec. 19. The corn was valued at $7.

All pleaded guilty before H. O. Eveland, justice of peace. They were committed to the county jail after failing to pay. Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Miller Fissell filed the charges.

Rhoades had previously been sent to jail under a similar fine imposed by Mayor W. J. Graham on a bicycle theft charge.

The expense of the addition to the courthouse has been increased. The original estimate was $51,550. A new estimate on file amounts to $55,500. Alterations in rooms, additional lighting, concealed telephone wiring and other improvements have added more to the expense than originally planned.

The additional expense will be paid by the county. The revised estimate was sent to P.W.A. officials.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE COMBATS KENTUCKY GOODS

COLUMBUS, May 24—(UP)—A border patrol of 50 state liquor inspectors worked today to break up a smuggling ring that is using private automobiles and rented trucks to bring illicit Kentucky whisky into Ohio.

State officials prepared to ask aid of federal authorities to stem the tide of liquor being smuggled in from adjacent states. Alfred A. Humphrey, state enforcement director, announced that he will go to Louisville next week to confer with federal liquor enforcement officials on a plan to prevent Kentucky distillers from selling to "distributors" who are smuggling liquor into Ohio.

Legal whisky in Kentucky is being sold directly to these distributors, who bring it into Ohio without paying the state's $1 a gallon tax or the 30 percent profit on all liquor sold here, Humphrey said.

Canton - Massillon Area Hit With Strike Ordered At Republic Co.

Lewis Announces First Step
Against Magnate

By UNITED PRESS

John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization moved on two fronts today in the steel and automobile industries.

At Richmond, Calif., approximately 1,200 workers in the assembly plant of Ford Motor Company voted unanimously to strike for national recognition of the United Automobile Workers union, a C.I.O. member.

In Detroit, national headquarters of the union announced they would distribute handbills to 50,000 Ford workers as they leave the River Rouge plant this afternoon.

In the Canton-Massillon, O. area Lewis's subsidiary steel workers' organizing committee closed down five plants of the Republic Steel Corporation, one of the great independent operators which has not yet signed a contract with the C.I.O. The strike began unexpectedly.

In Cincinnati, O., the executive council of the American Federation of Labor planned a counter-unionization campaign to that of Lewis in a series of conferences with leaders of 102 loyal craft unions.

Federation President William Green said: "The time for peace has passed."

In Wilsonville, Ill., 360 sit-down strikers—members of the Progressive Miners of America—continued to occupy Superior Coal Company pits as rival factions among the strikers argued over the sit-down tactics. The company prepared for a long siege.

PASTORS CLAIM ENOUGH NAMES TO FIGHT FORD

Rev. Kuhen Says Campaign To Continue Through Thursday

OVER 950 SIGN PAPER

Slot Machine Operations Lead To Ouster Move

CHILLICOTHE, May 26—Rev. W. L. Kuhen, secretary of the Ross County Citizenship League, reported Tuesday that the league's movement to impeach Mayor James E. Ford had received more than enough support to hall the chief executive before common pleas court for failing to enforce slot machine laws.

"We have secured more than 950 signers to complaints against the mayor," the pastor of First U. B. church declared, adding that the campaign for signers would continue through Thursday.

Reiterating the league's intention of filing the charges and bringing the mayor to trial for countenancing the operation of the so-called "one-armed bandits," Rev. Kuhen said a final checkup of complaints would be made that night.

The league's secretary pointed out that additional signers were being sought as a matter of safety, lest some names would be lost when a check of the complaints is made against the files of the county board of elections. Ten percent of the city's registered voters, approximately 950, is required to bring the mayor into court.

Rev. Kuhen's statement that the goal had been passed was issued following a meeting of local pastors at Trinity M. E. church, Tuesday morning.

SWARTHOUT-TOKATYAN

Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano, and Armand Tokatyan, tenor, both of the Metropolitan Opera, will be soloists of the Promenade Concerts program of Sunday, May 30.

They will sing with the 70-piece symphony orchestra, augmented by the 16-voice male chorus, under the direction of Erno Rapee. The nationwide hook-up of NBC-WJZ ("Blue") network stations will broadcast the program between 7 and 8 p. m., EST.

The program to be presented by the beautiful soprano star of the opera and motion picture stages, the Egyptian-born tenor, the orchestra and chorus will run the gamut of compositions from the melodious "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" from Kern's "Roberta," to such a rare treat as the "Rachel! quand du Seigneur" aria from Halévy's opera, "La Juive"—a beautiful melody seldom, if ever heard on the air.

In accordance with the custom for these Promenade concerts, the two soloists, the chorus and orchestra will join in a rendition of selections from among the favorite compositions of a great composer in the operetta field. On this program, the highlighted music of this type will be given in a form entitled, "A Concert Presentation of Jerome Kern," and will include such delightful songs as "The Song Is You," from "Music in the Air," which Miss Swarthout will sing; "I've Told Every Little Star," from the same work, which Tokatyan will sing.

Cooper and Arthur will star in Cecil B. DeMille's famous production "The Plainsman" in the Radio Theatre on Monday, May 31. This first radio broadcast of "The Plainsman" in its entirety will be under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille in his capacity as producer of Radio Theatre.

Cooper, as Wild Bill Hickok, and Jean Arthur, as Calamity Jane, have the leading roles in this romantic saga of the old West. It is based on an incident that happened just after the Civil War when Wild Bill started out to clean up the profiteers who were selling guns to the Indians.

Buffalo Bill, General Custer and President Lincoln are some of the other characters in the drama of action on the plains.

In the movies, "The Plainsman" was Cecil B. DeMille's greatest hit of recent years and now the same producer presents it on his own radio program. It will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 8 p. m. (EST).

HONOR AWARDS MADE

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Tuesday saw the Ashville school activities of 1936-37 brought to a close.

At 10 a. m. the eighth grade pupils held a short program as follows: Invocation by the Rev. Mr. Smith; piano solo by Dona Court-right; song by all the girls of the class, 16 of them, under the direction of Miss Plum; address by the Rev. Mr. Smith; piano solo by Orle Burton; presentation of certificates and honors by Supt. C. A. Higley.

This was followed by the usual picnic dinner at which about 600 were served sandwiches, salad, cheese, baked beans, potato chips, pickles, fruit, cake, iced tea, etc., in generous helpings. The crowd was served in 30 minutes, an average of 20 a minute, due to the well organized P. T. A. committees. Everyone seemed to enjoy the eats and especially the little friendly visits following.

At 8 p. m. the high school commencement was held.

All the numbers were exceptionally good especially the address by the Rev. Mr. Steffen. One feature not on the program was the presentation of honor medals by the superintendent to the following members of the class: athletics, Walter Gregg; music, John Peters; commercial, Ruth Courtwright; and scholarship, Jessie Fern Gloyd.

All in all, the last year has been a very satisfactory one and we are looking forward to another such beginning in September.

Rev. Fudge Home

Rev. H. D. Fudge, of the Lutheran church, returned home Sunday from Grant hospital where he had his tonsils removed. He is getting along nicely and will be ready for work again in a short time. . . . William Sark who has been in poor health for several weeks, is confined to his bed and does not seem to be making much improvement. . . . G. D. Griffith, who has been seriously sick for the last couple of weeks with heart disease is able to be out of bed for short periods, and is slowly improving. . . . Mrs. Isaac Bell is seriously ill at her home in West Ashville. . . . Robert Hoti and Roy Davey, carpenters, of Robtown, are here this week inspecting and making repairs to the grain bins of the Ashville Grain Co.

Girls' Record Excellent

Mona Sampson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sampson has a real reason for feeling proud of her school year's grade card. The card contains 67 E's, 40 G's, and 1 A. And besides these letter indications of good work, she was neither tardy nor absent during the whole school year. She was the only pupil in Grade Four receiving such a record and was given an Honor Record Certificate signed by Supt. of Schools, C. A. Higley and her teacher, Miss Lillian Kaiserman. It is not necessary to tell you that little Miss Sampson is proud of her record, and she is not the only proud one.

Foreign War Veterans Arranging Poppy Sale

Circleville will observe Buddy Poppy day, Saturday. Because the nationwide contribution of approximately 3,500 local Posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States to the flood relief funds of the American Red Cross virtually depleted the service and welfare treasuries of the respective units, it is imperative that the 1937 Buddy Poppy sale of the organization be greater than ever before.

This was the message conveyed to Commander Roy Norris, chairman of the local Buddy Poppy sale by Adjutant General R. B. Handy, Jr., Kansas City, Mo., chairman of the V. F. W. National Buddy Poppy committee.

Although the Buddy Poppy proceeds, for the last fifteen years, were devoted exclusively to the relief work of the organization among disabled veterans, and their dependents and the widows and orphans of veterans, a special ruling on Jan. 25, this year, released this money for contribution to the flood relief work of the American Red Cross, Commander Norris said. The authority to use the balance left in their Buddy Poppy funds, was granted to the posts by Commander-in-Chief Bernard W. Kearney, Gloversville, N. Y., as an emergency measure.

"The money V. F. W. posts gave to flood relief work was in addition to the tons of food, clothing medical necessities and other supplies that these units contributed to flood victims, in cooperation with the Red Cross and other relief agencies," Commander Norris said today. "Many of our Posts themselves were in the flooded areas. Many lost their club headquarters as a result of the disaster, but even so, their memberships participated virtually 100 per cent in working day and night administering relief and caring for refugees during the worst of the flood."

With their funds depleted, the approaching sixteenth annual nationwide distribution of Buddy Poppies, to be sponsored by virtually all of the 3,500 local units of the V. F. W. in every section of the country, offers the only opportunity of the next twelve months for obtaining funds necessary to carry on their work among America's disabled veterans and their families, Commander Norris explained. The entire proceeds of the drive here, as elsewhere, will be devoted to this service and rehabilitation work, Commander Norris said. A portion goes to the V. F. W. National Home for war orphans at Eaton Rapids, Mich., another share goes to maintain the V. F. W. National Service Bureau at Washington, D. C., and the remainder is devoted to the local work among disabled and needy veterans in this city, he explained.

It is the one occasion of the year when the American public is asked to share with the V. F. W. its care of disabled veterans and the widows and orphans of veterans. . . . a new three-quarter acre patch under cultivation for next year's crop. Said he was all over town yesterday hunting help but could find none—everybody busy.

Social Security Work Assured For Two Years

COLUMBUS, May 26—Assured of state funds to carry on during 1937 and 1938 the social security work which began last year, Ohio's public assistance programs aiding dependent and crippled children and indigent blind persons prepared to move ahead in rendering further assistance to the state's needy.

Recent approval by Gov. Martin L. Davey of a social security appropriations measure, providing $4,060,500 in state funds for public assistance work during the next two years, gives the state adequate funds for this type of work and insures Ohio of receiving around $4,000,000 in federal aid in 1937 and 1938 since the federal government participates in these programs.

Children to Benefit
Of the state funds $3,200,000 has been earmarked for the dependent children's program for the next two years while $280,000 has been appropriated for needy blind and $200,000 for treatment of Ohio's crippled children.

In addition to the state funds for the above programs, financial assistance from county and federal source are expected to allow for a wide expansion of the work which during the past year has aided over 32,000 handicapped persons unable to provide for their own needs.

More than $300,000 is being expended monthly in state-federal-county parental support and who have lost their natural breadwinners.

In addition, the public assistance program has been providing for 3,700 needy blind at a monthly cost of $60,000 and caring for over 2,100 crippled children whose parents cannot afford adequate treatment for them.

In the social security program for crippled children additional funds during the last year have made it possible to expand the program and enlarge the staff in providing better service.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The "inside story" of the billion dollar slot machine racket as it operates in a big city, is laid bare in "King of Gamblers," a daring and thrilling motion picture story which is showing at the Cliftona Theatre Thursday night only.

Written by Tiffany Thayer, noted writer of crime and racket stories, "King of Gamblers" parallels with striking adherence to recent newspaper headlines, the circumstances which led several Eastern cities to smash the racket and to consign the crooked machines to the ocean bottom.

The title role is played by Akim Tamiroff. He is supported by Claire Trevor, Lloyd Nolan, Larry Crabbe, Porter Hall, Helen Burgess and a number of other well-known featured players.

ROCKEFELLER

IN the public mind there has been a disposition to associate John D. Rockefeller with infinity. The years have passed swiftly, bringing wars and depressions, prosperity, tragedies that shook the nation and changes that altered the map of the world. But still this aged but ageless man continued the quiet tenor of his way until he looked back on nearly a century of life and on struggles and events that had established his own status as a Croesus, with those vast powers for good or for evil that are inherent in the possession of great wealth. The death of this man at ninety-seven years comes as none the less of a shock to the nation because of the circumstance that he had so long lived on intimate terms with death.

An appraisal of the career of John D. Rockefeller necessitates its division into two distinct phases — those earlier years of ambition and acquisitiveness and of ruthless instincts devoted to the accumulation of his fortune, and those more pleasant years when, with the weight of age beginning to rest heavily on him, he assumed a benign character and devoted himself to those generous and discriminate philanthropies by which he will best be remembered.

As a boy of sixteen, with little in the way of formal education, but with many of the elements of genius at his command, Rockefeller started to make his way in life at a time when the country was rich in opportunities for those with the wit and the spirit to take advantage of them. He had both and swept forward swiftly. The ruins of the Civil War smoldered. The West was still to be won and the country in general was ready for the hands of those equipped to make the best of the situation.

There were many such—Vanderbilt and Astor, Gould, Hill, Carnegie, Harriman, Rockefeller and others.

Mr. Rockefeller undertook to make his fortune in oil and succeeded in making about a billion dollars.

One of the controlling business principles of his career was that a man should gain as much money as he could honestly and should distribute it generously and discriminately.

Mr. Rockefeller was truly a philanthropist. In many respects he did more for the welfare of humanity than any man of his time. The cause of religion, of education, the arts and the sciences were encouraged and sustained by his generous benefactions. The benefits of his deep and practical interest in the relief of human suffering, however, will be experienced through-

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

SENATE BOONDOGLING

WASHINGTON — If the Senate continues with its present tortoise tactics the leaves will be withered and sere on Capitol Plaza before the world's greatest deliberative body adjourns.

Here is a typical subject now consuming the time of the Senate.

One Miguel Paula, citizen of the Netherlands, met his death in a U. S. Marine Hospital in New Orleans when an assistant surgeon made the mistake of injecting him with 20 per cent cocaine when he meant to use 2 per cent novocaine.

A board of medical officers attributed the mistake "to a failure on the part of the nurse on duty to correctly read the label on the flask containing cocaine solution."

This happened six years ago. For six years the case gathered dust in a pigeon-hole of the Foreign Relations Committee. Just the other day, the Committee got around to reporting the claim to the Senate, and the Senate, after further deliberation, decided to pay the claim of Miguel Paula, deceased seaman.

Following this, the Senate passed still another claim, on behalf of one Henry Boday, Frenchman, who had been assaulted by a pair of drunken U. S. Marines at his place of business in Port au Prince, Haiti. The assault occurred 20 years ago.

While waiting for the Supreme Court bill, the Senate is catching up with its business.

DEMOCRATIC

Arriving in Washington to take the oath of office, Tennessee's new junior Senator George L. Berry was met at the depot by a group of newsmen.

"How's it feel to be a Senator?" one of them asked.

"This is all new to me," beamed Berry, "just forget the 'Senator.' Call me George, boys, call me George."

out the world even after his name has been forgotten.

Scientists of the Rockefeller Foundation and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research have conquered pestilence and plague and brought relief to stricken human beings in every corner of the world. Child welfare and the social sciences have been advanced through his financial support. A half billion dollars of his money, it is estimated, has been expended for the betterment of mankind.

A fair judgment upon his century of life is that he did much good in the world in which he lived.

A boy doesn't reach manhood at 21, but at any age when he stops saying gimme.

You needn't become a cringing yes-man unless you are trying to get more than you are worth.

Why invent conveniences? Nobody is unhappy for want of them until they are offered for sale.

Yes, some political argument seems silly, but what of it? A worm looks silly, too, but it catches fish.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Presidents have many more of their fights with the senate than with the house of representatives.

A president who has an actual majority against him in the lower house cannot but have trouble with that house too. President Hoover, for example, had a Democratic majority of the representatives to combat during the latter half of his term. That was awkward, of course.

But a representational majority which partisanship is in accord with the White House generally is tolerably manageable by the tenant of the executive mansion.

The senate is different. There were Democratic senators whom President Wilson could not control. There were Republican senators whom Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover could not control. Each of them had a senate majority on paper, but there was no dependability about it when any issue came to a vote.

A MAJORITY THAT ISN'T

President Roosevelt has a perfectly enormous senate majority—on paper.

Out of 96 senators 76 call themselves Democrats. Besides, at least one independent Republican and one Progressive are on his side.

Theoretically the tally should be 75 pro-administrationists versus 18 "antis", counting a couple of Farmer-Laborites as of the "anti" faction—and, by all logic, this last named pair should be Rooseveltian ordinarily.

Yet the president has not got a senate majority that he can swear by.

More of his opponents (at least some of the time) are Democrats than there are Republicans in the senate chamber.

ALWAYS LIKE THAT

The rule holds good either way.

A Republican president cannot gamble on the support of a predominantly Republican senate; a Democratic president cannot gamble on a predominantly Democratic one.

It is all right. One likes to see independence in senators. Still, it is peculiar. And why aren't representatives as independent also?

SENATOR'S ADVANTAGE

It is a matter of tradition partly, in all probability.

Then, there is the consideration of senatorial versus house rules. A senator cannot be muzzled, as a representative can. The former can make speeches "ad lib" and become prominent regardless of the administration's wishes. A representative can be so tightly corked up that his constituents will consider him a nonentity—not worth having; thus he will be beat on next election day.

A senator has six years to "dig in"; a representative only two.

There is an occasional representative who hangs on so long that he can afford to become fairly "sassy" against the administration, but he is the exception.

UNPOPULAR SOMETIMES

A senator has one disadvantage; he is much more conspicuous than a representative.

This country has developed an economy complex.

President Roosevelt has said that the United States can run up a 35-billion-dollar indebtedness without danger, but that is enough. And it is past 35 billions already.

To spend still more alarms all hands. But to economize is unpopular, too.

A senator voting against continued expenditures, is on the right side, senatorially speaking. But a representative, voting similarly, is voting against federal financial "gravy" in his particular little locality.

THEN—PATRONAGE

Ditto patronage.

A senator, with two or three important offices to fill, may be able to explain to the few folk who didn't get them why they were unavailable.

A representative, with a much larger number of smaller but desired jobs, has much more trouble to explain his inability to dictate any of them. Thus he is much more amenable to executive influence to "be good".

F. D. R.'S PROBLEM

Thus, President Roosevelt, back from his vacation, had a moderately pliable house of representatives awaiting him.

But the senate was a different matter.

READ THIS FIRST:

Sandy Knight, in the temporary role of a radio announcer of a Children's Hour program, has been mailed by the fan mail of "a lady named Madden." Disgusted and humiliated, he jumps into his car and leaves town. After driving for miles, he pauses at a deserted beach for a plunge in the ocean. Suddenly a girl appears and asks Sandy to rescue her dog. He learns the girl is Marcia Madden whose grandmother perpetrated the radio prank. Then Sandy meets Grandma.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 4

SANDY was too surprised to answer when Marcia asked him to believe that she didn't know Grandma's part of the story. He was too fascinated by the joyous little figure in gray who was so enjoying her moment of importance.

"Come on, 'fess up," Marcia gave her the clue she needed to launch her story.

"You remember, Marcia, when I went up to Los Angeles to talk to Mr. Daryl about that property of mine in New York? Well, I found out that I might need someone to make a trip east to clear up matters. Daryl suggested young Mr. Knight here made frequent trips to New York. Since he was broadcasting in the same building, I went down to look him over. And I liked him."

Mrs. Madden smoothed the lace fichu around her neck, and paused to draw out the pleasure she was having.

"Of course, I may never need anyone to finish up matters in the east. But when I got home, I started thinking of this boy's nice personality and his funny little radio program, and I had me an idea." Here the old lady rocked back and forth with joy. "You know I've always said I'd have to have him and me out."

"Now Grandma, that's enough," Marcia interrupted in an agony of embarrassment.

"—to find you a beau," continued Grandma inexorably, "and to get you away from that vile office where you work. I fear for you, tearing around with those hoodlums. Anyway, I wrote those letters just to see what kind of a chap he was, but I didn't intend to have him find me out."

Here a little frown chased away the smiles, and Grandma admitted with mock sadness, "I didn't mean to turn murderess for a minute, and I still don't see how you figured that out. When I saw what you had done, I wired you right away, and I even put my real name in to make you believe it."

"I suppose you never dreamed that he'd come prancing down here, now did you?" Marcia accused.

"Well, yes. I guess I sort of hoped he would," Grandma said slyly, as the smiles broke out in little crinkly lines on her face.

"And he did."

"What's more, he'd glad he did," supplied Sandy, who had drawn the first normal breath since the cunning little old lady had started. This was an idyllic world he had entered, far from the noise and the turmoil and unpleasant experiences of the city. Sandy could hardly believe that he was the same so-called efficient business man who had left Los Angeles so disillusioned just a day before.

"You see, what's wrong with this house is that it needs a man," confided Grandma ingeniously, and she nodded toward Sandy. She took it for granted Marcia would approve her handiwork. The very old are sometimes the very wise, and the little old lady smiled indulgently as Marcia fled into the fluttery garden to evade her teasing, and the man's searching glances.

"Young woman, you've taken a great deal into your tiny hands, but I'm not sure but what it will turn out all right, exactly right," and Sandy exchanged a knowing wink with Grandma before he, too, headed for the garden.

Marcia didn't turn around when Sandy followed her outside. He wondered if she'd heard him, when he heard her call in a rather smothered voice, "Dammit, come here!"

Sandy turned her around.

ered voice, "Dammit, come here!" With mock solemnity Sandy walked in behind her.

"Well, here I am," he said, enjoying her discomfiture. When she did not turn to face him, he noticed that her shoulders were shaking.

"Ah, now—look here. Your grandmother meant no harm. Everything's all right now anyway, so let's go back to the time we shook hands and agreed to be friends," Sandy caught her by the shoulders and turned her gently around. To his amazement, she was not crying, and as she faced him her laughter became more uncontrolled. Sandy joined her as the humor of the whole situation struck him anew.

"Oh, the adorable, maddlesome little dear. Only she would have the nerve to do such a completely crazy, lovely thing," Marcia said between breaths.

"It took a regular whirlwind to bring us two together," he admitted when they had caught their breath, "and nothing short of a typhoon can separate us now."

"Sounds rather cataclysmic," said Marcia, and then added as an afterthought, "or is that how you'd say it?"

"I never did know how to pronounce that word," Sandy responded, and he extended his hand to give her a shining coin.

"What's this for?"

"Surely that must be the two-bit word they talk about," countered Sandy.

"Idiot. Yes, I think I'm going to like you," Marcia told him, and she stood back to survey the young man who had been dynamited so suddenly into her life. She approved his lean height, a prerequisite to all acceptable escorts with her. She liked the rough tweeds he wore with such easy grace, but most of all she liked his sincere manner and his earnest face. A sandy tatch of hair, direct gray eyes, and mouth that could be set in firm and uncompromising lines but which at the moment was relaxed in an easy smile that showed his even white teeth. "Yes, you'll do. At least until something better comes along."

"Then I must be a permanent fixture in your life, for my name is Andrew 'None Better' Knight."

"What are your plans, and where do you go from here?" the girl asked him.

"Why go anywhere? I don't have to be back in Los Angeles until the first, and until then the world's my oyster—and you're my pearl," Sandy answered, and wondered why it was so easy to talk such nonsense to a girl who, until the hour before, he'd never known existed. Like her, he had been analyzing his companion and she met with his complete approval.

"Not beautiful," he'd have said if you'd asked him, but her ready smile and sense of humor were immediately appealing, and the burnished copper of her hair, trimmed short to be a shining coronet for her small head, was glorious. Her large blue eyes looked directly into his at the moment, then crinkled in amusement as she seemed to guess his thoughts.

"Do I pass?" she asked. "I am 22, can type and do shorthand, and if I do say so myself, I'm about the best commercial artist this side of the Rockies. Any more qualifications needed?"

"You're way ahead, with flying colors," he admitted, "but frankly I don't need a secretary, and as for advertising—you know I represent Sullivan and Knight, Inc. I'm Knight."

"I don't see it," she said, peering off toward the horizon.

"What?"

"Why, the dawn—that always follows night, you know," she answered, jokingly. "Seriously, though, I don't believe I know the firm. And that's strange, too, because I'm in the same line of business—with Acme. Where are you located?"

Then Sandy launched into a discussion of his plans for opening new offices in the southern city, and found Marcia not only an interested but a helpful listener. They sat under a bright striped parasol in the gardens overlooking the sea, while they discussed things of mutual concern. The opportunities that awaited an ambitious young person, the dramatic interests of the advertising profession, humorous experiences in the course of business—all this came into their conversation.

Sandy was alternately amazed at the soundness of her knowledge and ideas, and fascinated by her personal charm. He realized that never before had he met a woman who combined so many desirable qualities under such an attractive exterior. For the moment his attention wandered from what she was saying, and he indulged in some unaccustomed day dreaming. But in a matter-of-fact way she demanded his attention with her next sincere words.

DIET AND HEALTH

How Heart of Athlete Responds to Exercise

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE HEAR a great deal about "athlete's heart". Exactly what it means is difficult to say. Superficially it means that a heart is damaged by too much exercise and goes into dilation. As a matter of fact, it is not too much exertion that causes hearts to dilate, but infection or mechanical difficulties, such as high blood pressure, which are the result of infection.

Athlete's heart is probably a myth, because it is almost physically impossible for a person to take exercise beyond the ability of the heart to endure it. Any heart has a certain capacity for allowing its owner to take exercise. It is judged on the basis of wind and of course, the ability of the athlete to endure is measured by his capacity to breathe and send oxygen to all the tissues of the body. As a muscle moves, it requires oxygen. The oxygen is brought in from the outside world through the lungs, enters the blood, and the heart must then pump this oxygenated blood to the tissues. Unless it is strong enough to do so, the exercise must cease.

Increases With Work
The heart, like any other muscle, increases in size with work, and this is the reason why athletic training will increase a person's wind. The young man of 20 can start the tennis season and be so short of breath that he will have to stop at the end of the second strenuous set. Two weeks later, after he has been doing it every day, he can play five or six sets in succession without any noticeable discomfort as to his wind. This is because his heart muscle has increased in efficiency and its fibers have actually increased in size.

The young man's heart is well supplied with blood. As time goes on, however, the blood vessels of the heart will begin to disappear in number and get smaller in size. The elderly heart is, therefore, automatically prevented from getting the oxygen that it needs, and an attempt to improve the wind of an elderly person is not nearly as successful as with the younger one. In fact, a middle-aged person reaches the place when there is no use of his trying to go on with an athletic contest because he simply can't get enough oxygen pumped around to his muscles to allow them to contract. It is for this reason that the middle-aged man must be content with less and less strenuous forms of exercise, until finally even walking up and down stairs becomes a little too much.

THE GREATEST INVENTION

The men were arguing as to who was the greatest inventor. One said Stephenson, who invented the locomotive. Another declared it was the man who invented the compass. Another contended for Edison.

Finally, one of them turned to a little man who had remained silent and said, "Who do you think?"

"The man who invented interest was no slouch," was the reply.

Poems That Live

THE NEWLY-WEDDED

Now the rite is duly done,
Now the word is spoken,
And the spell has made us one
Which may ne'er be broken;
Rest we, dearest, in our home,
Roam we o'er the heather:
We shall rest, and we shall roam,
Shall we not? together.

From this hour the summer rose
Sweeter breathes to charm us;
From this hour the winter snows
Lighter fall to harm us;
Fair of foul—on land or sea—
Come the wind or weather,
Best and worst, whatever they be,
We shall share together.

Death, who friend from friend can part,
Brother rend from brother,
Shall but link us, heart and heart,
Closer to each other:
We will call his anger play,
Deem his dart a feather,
When we meet him on our way
Hand in hand together.

Presbyterian Societies Honor Pastor and Wife

125 Attend Tuesday Evening Reception in Church

Complimenting the Rev. and Mrs. Emil S. Toensmeier, the Ladies' Aid society and the Women's Social Club of the Presbyterian church entertained a congregational reception, Tuesday evening, in the social room of the church.

The regular business meeting of the social club was held at 7:30 o'clock preceding the reception. Mrs. Loring Evans was in the chair for the session, and after the routine business, the slate of officers for the coming year was presented by the nominating committee, comprised of Mrs. Eva Dresbach, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. E. O. Crites. The officers chosen were Mrs. Hulse Hays, president; Mrs. B. T. Hedges, vice president; Mrs. Irma Stevenson, recording secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Maxine Dowler, corresponding secretary. The business being completed, the meeting was turned over to the program committee.

For the first number the Monday club trio offered three numbers, "My Love is a Fisherman", by Lily Strickland; "Passing By", by Edward Purcell, and "The Holiday", by Pearl Curran, with the accompaniments played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, at the piano. Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. J. P. Moffitt are members of the trio, and their work was pleasing, showing splendid balance and versatile artistry.

The second number was a unique amateur moving picture show, offered by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Renick, the pictures being taken on their summer vacation of last year. Mrs. Renick pleasantly told of the places visited during the six-day vacation, and explained the different scenes as shown by Mr. Renick. Views taken in Pennsylvania, New York, at Niagara Falls and in Canada were shown.

The last number planned for the evening was a group of songs, presented by Mrs. J. P. Moffitt. She sang, "Sylvia", by Olej Speaks; "An Evening Song", by Hallett Gilbert; and "Bless This House", by May H. Brahe. Miss Clarke played her accompaniments.

Fred Clark was introduced, expressing the sentiments of the congregation to the Rev. and Mrs. Toensmeier, continuing by reading a letter from their friends extending good wishes for the success of their trip East and concluding with the presentation of a gift from their friends of the church. The Rev. Mr. Toensmeier replied with a few well chosen words of thanks for himself and his wife.

The hostess committee served refreshments. The tea table was centered with a large bowl of iris in shades of yellow and lavender, many yellow candles in silver holders casting a pleasant glow over the silver service. At either end of the table silver, coffee and tea services were presided over by Mrs. Charles Dresbach and Mrs. G. H. Colville. Many large baskets and bouquets of garden flowers added a cheerful note to the social room. A delightful social hour was enjoyed by the guests.

In the receiving line were the

A white halo hat with dark blue ribbon banding, white linen open toe-and-heel sandals and navy leather bag, complete the costume.

Mrs. Fred Howell, and Mrs. Glenn Nickerson. More than 125 persons were entertained.

Contract Club Meets

Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, of Pinckney street, entertained the members of her contract bridge club at her home, Monday evening. All members were present for the evening's play. When the scores were tallied at the conclusion of the games prizes were awarded Mrs. George Hammel and Mrs. Ralph Curtian. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

The club will meet in two weeks on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Hammel, N. Court street.

C. A. C. Dance

The Circleville Athletic club is planning an unusually fine entertainment for its holiday dance, Saturday night in the gymnasium. The club has secured Chuck Selby and his orchestra, of Columbus. The feature of the evening will be Charles Pennington and his swing trumpet. The dance will be on the social plan, and will continue from 9 o'clock.

Mt. Pleasant Ladies' Aid

Mt. Pleasant Ladies' Aid society will hold its June meeting in Mt. Pleasant church, Tuesday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock. The hostesses will be Mrs. Frank Collett and Mrs. William Drenning. A silver offering will be taken.

Club Enjoys Luncheon to Hear Report

Forty-four members of the Monday Club were present Tuesday at the May Day luncheon held in the New American Hotel coffee shop. This extra session meeting, held for the purpose of hearing the report of the delegate to the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs, was turned into a delightful social session through the efforts of the committee comprised of Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. E. F. Anderson and Mrs. Arthur Wilder. Baskets of phlox and iris decorated the long tables and a tiny bouquet of raspberry shrub lay at each plate. Mrs. Fred Griner, outgoing president, presided, and Mrs. Charles Gerhardt gave the invocation.

Between courses of the luncheon, Miss Eleanor Snyder sang two solos, "Little Old Lady" and "Italian Street Song". The Monday Club trio sang a group of three songs, "My Love is a Fisherman", "Passing By" and "A Holiday". Members of the trio are Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. James Moffitt. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke accompanied both groups.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt read a clipping which referred to Dr. Van Cleef, who spoke before the Monday Club this year. Dr. Van Cleef has been decorated with the Order of the White Rose by the government of Finland for his work in behalf of the Finnish people. Dr. Van Cleef became interested in these people when he was a member of the faculty of the State Teachers' College in Duluth, Minn., and is the author of a number of books about the Finnish people in America and in their own land.

Mrs. G. D. Phillips was presented as delegate to the state convention, held in Akron last week. Mrs. Phillips gave an interesting and inspiring resume of the convention meetings, particularly those which concerned themselves with women's club activities in the state. The Ohio Federation of Women's clubs last year sold $10,000 worth of articles made by the blind, provided for the education of Miss Ophelia Mendoza, the Pan American Fellowship student, gave 17 scholarships to girls in Ohio, besides doing invaluable work in such community projects as safety councils, milk funds, maternity clinics and for delinquent children. Mrs. Phillips had attended meeting concerned with all these projects and brought back much valuable information.

One of the latest projects of the Ohio Federation concerns the planting of a memorial forest of 600 acres in the southeastern part of the state. This will be a part of the Flood Conservancy program.

here and one in nearby Massillon. The Canton manufacturing employ 8,000 workers, the Massillon plant, 5,000.

S. W. O. C. leaders withheld comment until after a conference at 3 p. m. in Youngstown, O. The session was called when executives of the Inland Steel Corporation announced in Chicago they would not sign a union contract.

Spokesmen for Republic, the nation's third largest steel producer, estimated the number of pickets at Canton plants at "between 300 and 400," and the number at Massillon as 150.

They said the plants already closed had been ordered shut down in accordance with the company's frequently-announced intention of suspending operations "until civil authorities clear the streets and make it possible for our men to return peacefully."

RICHMOND, Cal., May 26 — (UP) — The opening fight in a nationwide campaign to force Henry Ford to recognize the United Automobile Workers of America was started at the Richmond Ford assembly plant today when approximately 1,200 workers voted unanimously to go on strike.

The workers demanded national recognition of their union by the Ford Motor company.

Frank Slaby, business representative of the U. A. W. A., local 76, who announced the vote, said that this would not be a sit-down strike.

It was reported that about 25 workers, said to be non-union employees, sat outside the hall when the vote of the night crew was taken after they went off shift early today.

Union officials immediately assigned pickets to posts around the Richmond plant and sent others to San Francisco to picket the Ford plant there.

Eight Demands Made

The union was said to be preparing eight separate demands to be made on the employers.

All were not announced immediately, but they included reinstatement to their former jobs of two men who had been active in a sit-down strike at the plant on April 23.

The union charged these men had been "shuffled around the plant and given disagreeable jobs until one of them had been forced to quit."

The strikers said that the company was fostering a company union and permitting officials of this

GERHARDT CALLS 12 WITNESSES IN BABB SHOOTING

Testimony of Farmer's Widow
Believed of Much
Importance
SESSION IS THURSDAY
Five To Testify In Case
Against Walter Hart

Seventeen witnesses will be called before the Pickaway county jury Thursday in its investigation of two cases, the shooting of Weldon Babb, Perry township farmer, and a statutory charge against Walter Hart, E. Logan street.

Twelve witnesses have been called to testify about the shooting of Mr. Babb last week. It is understood considerable interest will center about the testimony of Mrs. Bertha Babb, widow of the slain man. She sought refuge at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Teets, tenants on the Babb farm, after she had been severely beaten by her husband.

Babb was shot as he approached the home. John Teets, 26, who fired at Babb with a shotgun, is being held in the county jail for investigation. No charge has been filed against him.

Coroner C. E. Bowers conducted an inquest Monday, but announced he would render no verdict until he had completed further investigation.

Brady Bandits Escape Posses

Police of Four States Hunting Bandits;
Indiana Man Feared Dying After Bank
Robbers Lay Trap; Legion in Action

LOGANSPORT, Ind., May 26—(UP)—Officers and volunteers armed with shotguns, machine guns, radios and airplanes patrolled highways of four states today to halt depredations of a gang whose leader boasted he would out-Dillinger the infamous John Dillinger.

Somewhere in Indiana backlands Alfred Brady, James Dalhove and Clarence Lee Shaffer were believed hiding with the $2,500 they scooped from the vaults of the Goodland, Ind., state bank yesterday. One of their guns was the .30 calibre Automatic rifle which pumped 51 slugs in a pursuing state police car, wounding State Policeman Paul Minneman critically and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Craig less seriously.

Each of Indiana's 180 state police officers and 300 special deputies assigned to the hunt was warned "be sure you are armed."

State Police Captain Matt Leach at Indianapolis swore: "we'll get that gang if we have to follow them to the end of the earth."

Boundaries Covered

Michigan, Ohio and Illinois state police posted patrols at state boundaries to inspect cars leaving Indiana. Indiana officers scanned highways from four airplanes late yesterday, planned to take off again after daylight if new clues were offered.

Every sheriff's office in Indiana's 92 counties was "on the alert." Possesmen chased down dozens of clues without success.

At Nyona Lake, 20 miles south of here, 50 American Legionnaires joined deputies in invading a suspected hideout.

Minneman received his fourth blood transfusion in a Logansport hospital where doctors believed he was dying.

Officers said they were certain their quarry was the gang led by Brady who boasted, when arrested in Chicago April 29 that he would make the late Dillinger "look like a piker."

Same Car Used

The car used in the Goodland foray bore the same license plates as that used for robbery of the Farmland State bank April 27, in which Brady and Dalhove were definitely identified.

The men invaded the Goodland bank early yesterday, waited 15 minutes for the time lock to open the vault. One of them told Bank Director Lyle Constable to "say hello to Winn for me." This was believed to be Dalhove who came from the same town as the officer, Madison, Ind.

Minneman and Craig pursued the three. At an intersection where the officers slowed down, the gunmen lay in wait behind a church. The slugs from their gun blasted the door from the officers' car, and both men pitched onto the pavement. Minneman was unconscious.

UTILITY, COUNCIL AND MERCHANTS TO MEET AT 8

Conference To Be Held
In Offices Of Power
Company

AGREEMENT IS SOUGHT

All Angles of Contract To Be Discussed

Councilmen, officials of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., and a committee of business men headed by W. E. Wallace, will confer Thursday at 8 p. m. in the electric company's offices E. Main street.

The meeting was announced Wednesday by Frank Marion, chairman of council as a committee on the light rate situation.

Members of the committee representing businessmen and residents attended the last session of council and presented a schedule of rates for consideration. The schedule was lower than the rates offered by the electric company.

The suggestion was made that the meeting of the three groups be called so all angles of the rates could be considered at the same time.

Points of controversy between the utility, council and the businessmen include the length of the contract, the company asking a 10-year agreement, and the rate requested for commercial lighting.

ETHIOPIA HALTS ITALY'S RETURN TO LEAGUE SEAT

GENEVA, May 26—(UP)—Ethiopia again today blocked Italy's return to the League of Nations for an indefinite period.

Although not represented at the league assembly session, Ethiopia retained her membership in the league until next September, at least. The assembly made no decision on Ethiopia's status, only Poland and Mexico referring to the problem today.

The Mexican delegate said his country was prepared to oppose any effort to exclude Ethiopia from her seat at the league. His statement raised the possibility that again in the September meeting the assembly might be unable to remove Ethiopia from the membership list, as demanded by Italy.

THEFT OF CORN IS ADMITTED BY TRIO OF YOUTHS

Theft of corn from two Pickaway county farmers last December was charged Wednesday by the sheriff's department when three youths were fined $25 and costs each on charges of petit larceny.

George Rhoades, 19, and Clarence Conrad, 19, both of whom reside along the canal north of the city, were fined for the theft of two sacks of corn valued at $2 from Clarence Peters, Island road, on Dec. 4.

Rhoades and Lonny Keaton, 19, of Weldon avenue were fined for the theft of eight sacks of corn from P. M. McDaniels, Pickaway township, Dec. 19. The corn was valued at $7.

All pleaded guilty before H. O. Eveland, justice of peace. They were committed to the county jail after failing to pay. Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Miller Fissell filed the charges.

Rhoades had previously been sent to jail under a similar fine imposed by Mayor W. J. Graham on a bicycle theft charge.

COURTHOUSE JOB COST TO BE OVER EARLY ESTIMATE

The expense of the addition to the courthouse has been increased. The original estimate was $51,550. A new estimate on file amounts to $55,500. Alterations in rooms, additional lighting, concealed telephone wiring and other improvements have added more to the expense than originally planned. The additional expense will be paid by the county.

The revised estimate was sent to P.W.A. officials.

FRENCH AIRPLANE SHOT TO GROUND IN SPANISH AREA

BILBAO, May 26—(UP)—Nationalist airplanes brought down and destroyed a French airplane in the Bilbao-France commercial service, gravely wounding its pilot and injuring a passenger slightly, it was asserted by loyalists today.

The plane was shot down 15 miles from Bilbao. The air line makes three flights to Bilbao daily. The plane is of British manufacture.

RUSSIAN PLANES CARRY Supplies to Explorers

MOSCOW, May 26—(UP)—Three four-motored supply planes flew to the North Pole region today to take supplies to the Russian explorers camped on the ice at the top of the world.

Nine tons of supplies, scientific instruments, foodstuffs, fuel and a tent were taken for the four men who are to remain floating on the polar ice until next spring.

One of the three supply planes landed at the "North Pole" weather station on its 10 foot ice floe at 6:24 a. m. A second landed soon afterward 12 1/2 miles from the pole, and apparently near the camp.

There was no immediate word of the third, though wireless advices had been that all three reached the camp position.

There were 13 men at the flight in the plane N-170. Four of them are to remain drifting on the ice for a year, making observations on weather, ice and water.

1,200 WORKERS LEAVE FACTORY IN CALIFORNIA

Canton - Massillon Area Hit
With Strike Ordered At Republic Co.

TWO HURT BY PICKETS

Lewis Announces First Step
Against Magnate

By UNITED PRESS

John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization moved on two fronts today in the steel and automobile industries.

At Richmond, Calif., approximately 1,200 workers in the assembly plant of Ford Motor Company voted unanimously to strike for national recognition of the United Automobile Workers union, a C.I.O. member.

In Detroit, national headquarters of the union announced they would distribute handbills to 30,000 Ford workers as they leave the River Rouge plant this afternoon.

In the Canton-Massillon, O. area, Lewis's subsidiary steel workers' organizing committee closed down five plants of the Republic Steel Corporation, one of the great independent operators which has not yet signed a contract with the C.I.O. The strike began unexpectedly.

In Cincinnati, O., the executive council of the American Federation of Labor planned a counter-unionization campaign to that of Lewis in a series of conferences with leaders of 102 loyal craft unions.

Federation President William Green said: "The time for peace has passed."

In Wilsonville, Ill., 360 sit-down strikers—members of the Progressive Miners of America—continued to occupy Superior Coal Company pits as rival factions among the strikers argued over the sit-down tactics. The company prepared for a long siege.

LIQUOR CONTROL OFFICE COMBATS KENTUCKY GOODS

COLUMBUS, May 24—(UP)—A border patrol of 50 state liquor inspectors worked today to break up a smuggling ring that is using private automobiles and rented trucks to bring illicit Kentucky whisky into Ohio.

State officials prepared to ask aid of federal authorities to stem the tide of liquor being smuggled in from adjacent states. Alfred A. Humphrey, state enforcement director, announced that he will go to Louisville next week to confer with federal liquor enforcement officials on a plan to prevent Kentucky distillers from selling to "distributors" who are smuggling liquor into Ohio.

Legal whisky in Kentucky is being sold directly to these distributors, who bring it into Ohio without paying the state's $1 a gallon tax or the 30 percent profit on all liquor sold here, Humphrey said.

Lewis's steel workers' organizing committee prepared to discuss strike action against other independent steel producers. All One plant, Republic's alloy divi were picketed.

Five others, remained in operation, but five others were closed as pickets surrounded the entrances.

Two men who attempted to cross a picket line to go to work were cut by flying glass when a stone was tossed through the windshield of their automobile.

The strikes began unexpectedly, over alleged discrimination against S. W. O. C. unionists. They affected five Republic subsidiaries.

STORS CLAIM ENOUGH NAMES TO FIGHT FORD

Rev. Kuhen Says Campaign
To Continue Through Thursday

OVER 950 SIGN PAPER

Slot Machine Operations Lead
To Ouster Move

CHILLICOTHE, May 26.—Rev. W. L. Kuhen, secretary of the Ross County Citizenship League, reported Tuesday that the league's movement to impeach Mayor James E. Ford had received more than enough support to hail the chief executive before common pleas court for failing to enforce slot machine laws.

"We have secured more than 950 signers to complaints against the mayor," the pastor of First U. B. church declared, adding that the campaign for signers would continue through Thursday.

Reiterating the league's intention of filing the charges and bringing the mayor to trial for countenancing the operation of the so-called "one-armed bandits," Rev. Kuhen said a final checkup of complaints would be made that night.

The league's secretary pointed out that additional signers were being sought as a matter of safety, lest some names would be lost when a check of the complaints is made against the files of the county board of elections. Ten percent of the city's registered voters, approximately 950, is required to bring the mayor into court.

Rev. Kuhen's statement that the goal had been passed was issued following a meeting of local pastors at Trinity M. E. church, Tuesday morning.

Cooper, as Wild Bill Hickok, and Jean Arthur, as Calamity Jane, have the leading roles in this romantic saga of the old West. It is based on an incident that happened just after the Civil War when Wild Bill started out to clean up the profiteers who were selling guns to the Indians.

Buffalo Bill, General Custer and President Lincoln are some of the other characters in the drama of action on the plains.

In the movies, "The Plainsman" was Cecil B. DeMille's greatest hit of recent years and now the same producer presents it on his own radio program. It will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 8 p. m. (EST).

SWARTHOUT-TOKATYAN

Gladys Swarthout, mezzo - soprano, and Armand Tokatyan, tenor, both of the Metropolitan Opera, will be soloists of the Promenade Concerts program of Sunday, May 30.

They will sing with the 70-piece symphony orchestra, augmented by the 16-voice male chorus, under the direction of Erno Rapee. The nation-wide hook-up of NBC-WJZ ("Blue") network stations will broadcast the program between 7 and 8 p. m., EST.

The program to be presented by the beautiful soprano star of the opera and motion picture stages, the Egyptian-born tenor, the orchestra and chorus will run the gamut of compositions from the melodious "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" from Kern's "Roberta," to such a rare treat as the "Rachel" from the opera, "La Juive" — a beautiful melody seldom, if ever heard on the air.

In accordance with the custom for these Promenade concerts, the two soloists, the chorus and orchestra will join in a rendition of selections from among the favorite compositions of a great composer in the operetta field. On this program, the highlighted music of this type will be given in a form entitled, "A Concert Presentation of Jerome Kern," and will include such delightful songs as "The Song Is You," from "Music in the Air," which Miss Swarthout will sing; "I've Told Every Little Star," from the same work, which Tokatyan will sing.

HONOR AWARDS MADE

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Tuesday saw the Ashville school activities of 1936-37 brought to a close.

At 10 a. m. the eighth grade pupils held a short program as follows: Invocation by the Rev. Mr. Smith; piano solo by Dona Courtwright; song by all the girls of the class, 16 of them, under the direction of Miss Plum; address by the Rev. Mr. Smith; piano solo by Orie Burton; presentation of certificates and honors by Supt. C. A. Higley.

This was followed by the usual picnic dinner at which about 600 were served sandwiches, salad, cheese, baked beans, potato chips, pickles, fruit, cake, iced tea, etc., in generous helpings. The crowd was served in 30 minutes, an average of 20 a minute, due to the well organized P. T. A. committees. Everyone seemed to enjoy the eats and especially the little friendly visits following.

At 8 p. m. the high school commencement was held.

All the numbers were exceptionally good especially the address by the Rev. Mr. Steffen. One feature not on the program was the presentation of honor medals by the superintendent to the following members of the class: athletics, Walter Gregg; music, John Peters; commercial, Ruth Courtwright; and scholarship, Jessie Fern Gloyd.

All in all, the last year has been a very satisfactory one and we are looking forward to another such beginning in September.

Rev. Fudge Home

Rev. H. D. Fudge, of the Lutheran church, returned home Sunday from Grant hospital where he had his tonsils removed. He is getting along nicely and will be ready for work again in a short time. William Sark who has been in poor health for several weeks, is confined to his bed and does not seem to be making much improvement.

G. D. Griffith, who has been seriously sick for the last couple of weeks with heart disease is able to be out of bed for short periods, and is slowly improving.

Mrs. Isaac Bell is seriously ill at her home in West Ashville. Robert Hott and Roy Davey, carpenters, of Robtown, are here this week inspecting and making repairs to the grain bins of the Ashville Grain Co.

Girls' Record Excellent

Mona Sampson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sampson, has a real reason for feeling proud of her school year's grade card. The card contains 67 E's, 40 G's, and 1 A. And besides these letter indications of good work, she was neither tardy nor absent during the whole school year. She was the only pupil in Grade Four receiving such a record and was given an Honor Record Certificate signed by Supt. of Schools, C. A. Higley and her teacher, Miss Lillian Kaiserman. It is not necessary to tell you that little Miss Sampson is proud of her record, and she is not the only proud one.

Foreign War Veterans Arranging Poppy Sale

Circleville will observe Buddy Poppy day, Saturday. Because the nationwide contribution of approximately 3,500 local Pops of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States to the flood relief funds of the American Red Cross virtually depleted the service and welfare treasuries of the respective units, it is imperative that the 1937 Buddy Poppy sale of the organization be greater than ever before.

This was the message conveyed to Commander Roy Norris, chairman of the local Buddy Poppy sale by Adjutant General R. B. Handy, Jr., Kansas City, Mo., chairman of the V. F. W. National Buddy Poppy committee.

Although the Buddy Poppy proceeds, for the last fifteen years, were devoted exclusively to the relief work of the organization among disabled veterans, and their dependents and the widows and orphans of veterans, a special ruling on Jan. 25, this year, released this money for contribution to the flood relief work of the American Red Cross, Commander Norris said. The authority to use the balance left in their Buddy Poppy funds, was granted to the posts by Commander-in-Chief Bernard W. Kearney, Gloversville, N. Y., as an emergency measure.

"The money V. F. W. posts gave to flood relief work was in addition to the tons of food, clothing, medical necessities and other supplies that these units contributed to flood victims, in cooperation with the Red Cross and other relief agencies," Commander Norris said today. "Many of our Posts themselves were in the flooded areas. Many lost their club headquarters as a result of the disaster, but even so, their memberships participated virtually 100 per cent in working day and night administering relief and caring for refugees during the worst of the flood."

With their funds depleted, the approaching sixteenth annual countrywide distribution of Buddy Poppies, to be sponsored by virtually all of the 3,500 local units of the V. F. W. in every section of the country, offers the only opportunity of the next twelve months for obtaining funds necessary to carry on their work among America's disabled veterans and their families, Commander Norris explained. The entire proceeds of the drive here, as elsewhere, will be devoted to this service and rehabilitation work, Commander Norris said. A portion goes to the V. F. W. National Home for war orphans at Eaton Rapids, Mich., another share goes to maintain the V. F. W. National Service Bureau at Washington, D. C., and the remainder is devoted to the local work among disabled and needy veterans in this city, he explained.

It is the one occasion of the year when the American public is asked to share with the V. F. W. its care of disabled veterans and the widows and orphans of veterans. a new three-quarter acre patch under cultivation for next year's crop. Said he was all over town yesterday hunting help but could find none—everybody busy.

The many friends of the Custers of Madison township are pleased to learn that one of these days this fine couple will be able to take another buggy ride together. Mrs. Custer has been quite sick for the last several weeks, but has so far recovered that she is up and about the house much of the time.

Splendid Pea Weather
John Wilson, the field and acreage man for the Crites Cannery here, said to me today that this is good pea growing weather and that the several hundred acres of this crop he thought was doing good, but that the canning operation would not likely begin until near the middle of next month.

Social Security Work Assured For Two Years

COLUMBUS, May 26—Assured of state funds to carry on during 1937 and 1938 the social security work which began last year, Ohio's public assistance programs aiding dependent and crippled children and indigent blind persons prepared to move ahead in rendering further assistance to the state's needy.

Recent approval by Gov. Martin L. Davey of a social security appropriations measure, providing $4,060,500 in state funds for public assistance work during the next two years, gives the state adequate funds for this type of work and insures Ohio of receiving around $4,000,000 in federal aid in 1937 and 1938 since the federal government participates in these programs.

Children to Benefit
Of the state funds $3,200,000 has been earmarked for the dependent children's program for the next two years while $280,000 has been appropriated for needy blind and $200,000 for treatment of Ohio's crippled children.

In addition to the state funds for the above programs, financial assistance from county and federal source are expected to allow for a wide expansion of the work which during the past year has aided over 32,000 handicapped persons unable to provide for their own needs.

More than $300,000 is being expended monthly in state-federal-county parental support and who have lost their natural breadwinners.

In addition, the public assistance program has been providing for 3,700 needy blind at a monthly cost of $60,000 and caring for over 2,100 crippled children whose parents cannot afford adequate treatment for them.

In the social security program for crippled children additional funds during the last year have made it possible to expand the program and enlarge the staff in providing better service.

ROCKEFELLER
IN the public mind there has been a disposition to associate John D. Rockefeller with infinity. The years have passed swiftly, bringing wars and depressions, prosperity, tragedies that shook the nation and changes that altered the map of the world. But still this aged but ageless man continued the quiet tenor of his way until he looked back on nearly a century of life and on struggles and events that had established his own status as a Croesus, with those vast powers for good or for evil that are inherent in the possession of great wealth. The death of this man at ninety-seven years comes as none the less of a shock to the nation because of the circumstance that he had so long lived on intimate terms with death.
An appraisal of the career of John D. Rockefeller necessitates its division into two distinct phases — those earlier years of ambition and acquisitiveness and of ruthless instincts devoted to the accumulation of his fortune, and those more pleasant years when, with the weight of age beginning to rest heavily on him, he assumed a benign character and devoted himself to those generous and discriminate philanthropies by which he will best be remembered.
As a boy of sixteen, with little in the way of formal education, but with many of the elements of genius at his command, Rockefeller started to make his way in life at a time when the country was rich in opportunities for those with the wit and the spirit to take advantage of them. He had both and swept forward swiftly. The ruins of the Civil War smoldered. The West was still to be won and the country in general was ready for the hands of those equipped to make the best of the situation.
There were many such—Vanderbilt and Astor, Gould, Hill, Carnegie, Harriman, Rockefeller and others.
Mr. Rockefeller undertook to make his fortune in oil and succeeded in making about a billion dollars.
One of the controlling business principles of his career was that a man should gain as much money as he could honestly and should distribute it generously and discriminately.
Mr. Rockefeller was truly a philanthropist. In many respects he did more for the welfare of humanity than any man of his time. The cause of religion, of education, the arts and the sciences were encouraged and sustained by his generous benefactions. The benefits of his deep and practical interest in the relief of human suffering, however, will be experienced through-

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
SENATE BOONDOGLING
WASHINGTON — If the Senate continues with its present tortoise tactics the leaves will be withered and sere on Capitol Plaza before the world's greatest deliberative body adjourns.
Here is a typical subject now consuming the time of the Senate.
One Miguel Paula, citizen of the Netherlands, met his death in a U. S. Marine Hospital in New Orleans when an assistant surgeon made the mistake of injecting him with 20 per cent cocaine when he meant to use 2 per cent novocaine.
A board of medical officers attributed the mistake "to a failure on the part of the nurse on duty to correctly read the label on the flask containing cocaine solution."
This happened six years ago. For six years the case gathered dust in a pigeon-hole of the Foreign Relations Committee. Just the other day, the Committee got around to reporting the claim to the Senate, and the Senate, after further deliberation, decided to pay the claim of Miguel Paula, deceased seaman.
Following this, the Senate passed still another claim, on behalf of one Henry Borday, Frenchman, who had been assaulted by a pair of drunken U. S. Marines at his place of business in Port au Prince, Haiti. The assault occurred 20 years ago.
While waiting for the Supreme Court bill, the Senate is catching up with its business.

DEMOCRATIC
Arriving in Washington to take the oath of office, Tennessee's new junior Senator George L. Berry was met at the depot by a group of newsmen.
"How's it feel to be a Senator?" one of them asked.
"This is all new to me," beamed Berry, "just forget the 'Senator.' Call me George, boys, call me George."
out the world even after his name has been forgotten.
Scientists of the Rockefeller Foundation and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research have conquered pestilence and plague and brought relief to stricken human beings in every corner of the world. Child welfare and the social sciences have been advanced through his financial support. A half billion dollars of his money, it is estimated, has been expended for the betterment of mankind.
A fair judgment upon his century of life is that he did much good in the world in which he lived.
A boy doesn't reach manhood at 21, but at any age when he stops saying gimme.
You needn't become a cringing yes-man unless you are trying to get more than you are worth.
Why invent conveniences? Nobody is unhappy for want of them until they are offered for sale.
Yes, some political argument seems silly, but what of it? A worm looks silly, too, but it catches fish.

World At A Glance
—By Charles P. Stewart
Presidents have many more of their fights with the senate than with the house of representatives.
A president who has an actual majority against him in the lower house cannot but have trouble with that house too. President Hoover, for example, had a Democratic majority of the representatives to combat during the latter half of his term. That was awkward, of course.
But a representative majority which particularly is in accord with the White House generally is tolerably manageable by the tenant of the executive mansion.
The senate is different. There were Democratic senators whom President Wilson could not control. There were Republican senators whom Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover could not control. Each of them had a senate majority on paper, but there was no dependability about it when any issue came to a vote.
A MAJORITY THAT ISN'T
President Roosevelt has a perfectly enormous senate majority—on paper.
Out of 96 senators 76 call themselves Democrats. Besides, at least one independent Republican and one Progressive are on his side.
Theoretically the tally should be 78 pro-administrationists versus 18 "anti's," counting a couple of Farmer-Laborites as of the "anti" faction—and, by all logic, this last named pair should be Rooseveltian ordinarily.
Yet the president has not got a

Love is for Tomorrow

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
READ THIS FIRST:
Sandy Knight, in the temporary role of a radio announcer of a Children's Hour program, has been misled by the fact that the lady named Madden, disgusted and humiliated, he jumps into his car and leaves town. After driving for miles, he pauses at a deserted beach for a plunge in the ocean. Suddenly a girl appears and asks Sandy to rescue her dog. He learns the girl is Marcia Madden whose grandmother perpetrated the radio prank. Then Sandy meets Grandma.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
CHAPTER 4
SANDY was too surprised to answer when Marcia asked him to believe that she didn't know Grandma's part of the story. He was too fascinated by the joyous little figure in gray who was so enjoying her moment of importance.
"Come on, 'fess up," Marcia gave her the clue she needed to launch her story.
"You remember, Marcia, when I went up to Los Angeles to talk to Mr. Daryl about that property of mine in New York? Well, I found out that I might need someone to make a trip east to clean up matters. Daryl suggested young Mr. Knight here made frequent trips to New York. Since he was broadcasting in the same building, I went down to look him over. And I liked him."
Mrs. Madden smoothed the lace fichu around her neck, and paused to draw out the pleasure she was having.
"Of course, I may never need anyone to finish up matters in the east. But when I got home, I started thinking of this boy's nice personality and his funny little radio program, and I had me an idea." Here the old lady rocked back and forth with joy. "You know I've always said I'd have to find you a beau."
"Now Grandma, that's enough," Marcia interrupted in an agony of embarrassment.
"—to find you a beau," continued Grandma inexorably, "and to get you away from that vile office where you work. I fear for you, tearing around with those hoodlums. Anyway, I wrote those letters just to see what kind of a chap he was, but I didn't intend to have him find me out."
Here a little frown chased away the smiles, and Grandma admitted with mock sadness, "I didn't mean to turn murderess for a minute, and I still don't see how you figured that out. When I saw what you had done, I wired you right away, and I even put my real name in to make you believe it."
"I suppose you never dreamed that he'd come prancing down here now did you?" Marcia accused.
"Well, yes, I guess I sort of hoped he would," Grandma said slyly, as the smiles broke out in little crinkly lines on her face. "And he did."
"What's more, he'd glad he did," supplied Sandy, who had drawn the first normal breath since the cunning little old lady had started. This was an idyllic world he had entered, far from the noise and the turmoil and unpleasant experiences of the city. Sandy could hardly believe that he was the same so-called efficient business man who had left Los Angeles so disillusioned just a day before.
"You see, what's wrong with this house is that it needs a man," confided Grandma ingeniously, and she nodded toward Sandy. She took it for granted Marcia would approve her handiwork. The very old are sometimes the very wise, and the little old lady smiled indulgently as Marcia fled into the fluttery garden to evade her teasing, and the man's searching glances.
"Young woman, you've taken a great deal into your tiny hands, but I'm not sure but what it will turn out all right, exactly right," and Sandy exchanged a knowing wink with Grandma before he, too, headed for the garden.
Marcia didn't turn around when Sandy followed her outside. He wondered if she'd heard him, when he heard her call in a rather smothered voice, "Dammit, come here!"
With mock solemnity Sandy walked up behind her.
"Well, here I am," he said, enjoying her discomfort. When she did not turn to face him, he noticed that her shoulders were shaking.
"Ah, now—look here. Your grandmother meant no harm. Everything's all right now anyway, so let's go back to the time we shook hands and agreed to be friends." Sandy caught her by the shoulders and turned her gently around. To his amazement, she was not crying, and as she faced him her laughter became more uncontrolled. Sandy joined her as the humor of the whole situation struck him anew.
"Oh, the adorable, meddlesome little dear. Only she would have the nerve to do such a completely crazy, lovely thing," Marcia said between breaths.
"It took a regular whirlwind to bring us two together," he admitted when they had caught their breath, "and nothing short of a typhoon can separate us now."
"Sounds rather cataclysmic," said Marcia, and then added as an afterthought, "or is that how you'd say it?"
"I never did know how to pronounce that word," Sandy responded, and he extended his hand to give her a shining coin.
"What's this for?"
"Surely that must be the two-bit word they talk about," countered Sandy.
"Idiot. Yes, I think I'm going to like you," Marcia told him, and she stood back to survey the young man who had been dynamited so suddenly into her life. She approved his lean height, a prerequisite to all acceptable escorts with her. She liked the rough tweeds he wore with such easy grace, but most of all she liked his sincere manner and his earnest face. A sandy tatch of hair, direct gray eyes, and mouth that could be set in firm and uncompromising lines but which at the moment was relaxed in an easy smile that showed his even white teeth. "Yes, you'll do. At least until something better comes along."
"Then I must be a permanent fixture in your life, for my name is Andrew 'None Better' Knight."
"What are your plans, and where do you go from here?" the girl asked him.
"Why go anywhere? I don't have to be back in Los Angeles until the first, and until then the world's my oyster—and you're my pearl!" Sandy answered, and wondered why it was so easy to talk such nonsense to a girl who, until the hour before, he'd never known existed. Like her, he had been analyzing his companion and she met with his complete approval. "Not beautiful," he'd have said if you'd asked him, but her ready smile and sense of humor were immediately appealing, and the brushed copper of her hair, trimmed short to be a shining coronet for her blue head, was glorious. Her large blue eyes looked directly into his at the moment, then crinkled in amusement as she seemed to guess his thoughts.

"Do I pass?" she asked. "I am 22, can type and do shorthand, and if I do say so myself, I'm about the best commercial artist this side of the Rockies. Any more qualifications needed?"
"You're way ahead, with flying colors," he admitted, "but frankly I don't need a secretary, and as for advertising—you know I represent Sullivan and Knight, Inc. I'm Knight."
"I don't see it," she said, peering off toward the horizon.
"What?"
"Why, the dawn—that always follows night, you know," she answered, jokingly. "Seriously, though, I don't believe I know the firm. And that's strange, too, because I'm in the same line of business—with Acme. Where are you located?"
Then Sandy launched into a discussion of his plans for opening new offices in the southern city, and found Marcia not only an interested but a helpful listener. They sat under a bright striped parasol in the gardens overlooking the sea, while they discussed things of mutual concern. The opportunities that awaited an ambitious young person, the dramatic interests of the advertising profession, humorous experiences in the course of business—all this came into their conversation.
Sandy was alternately amazed at the soundness of her knowledge and ideas, and fascinated by her personal charm. He realized that never before had he met a woman who combined so many desirable qualities under such an attractive exterior. For the moment his attention wandered from what she was saying, and he indulged in some unaccustomed day dreaming. But in a matter-of-fact way she demanded his attention with her next sincere words.

DIET AND HEALTH
How Heart of Athlete Responds to Exercise
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE HEAR a great deal about "athlete's heart". Exactly what it means is difficult to say. Superficially it means that a heart is damaged by too much exercise and goes into dilation. As a matter of fact, it is not too much exertion that causes hearts to dilate, but infection or mechanical difficulties, such as high blood pressure, which are the result of infection.
Athlete's heart is probably a myth, because it is almost physically impossible for a person to take exercise beyond the ability of the heart to endure it.
Any heart has a certain capacity for allowing its owner to take exercise. It is judged on the basis of wind and, of course, the ability of the athlete to endure is measured by his capacity to breathe and send oxygen to all the tissues of the body. As a muscle moves, it requires oxygen. The oxygen is brought in from the outside world through the lungs, enters the blood, and the heart then pumps this oxygenated blood to the tissues. Unless it is strong enough to do so, the exercise must cease.
Increases With Work
The heart, like any other muscle, increases in size with work, and this is the reason why athletic training will increase a person's wind. The young man of 20 can start the tennis season and be so short of breath that he will have to stop at the end of the second strenuous set. Two weeks later, after he has been doing it every day, he can play five or six sets in succession without any noticeable discomfort as to his wind. This is because the heart muscle has increased in efficiency and its fibers have actually increased in size.
The young man's heart is well supplied with blood. As time goes on, however, the blood vessels of the heart will begin to disappear in number and get smaller in size. The elderly heart is, therefore, automatically prevented from getting the oxygen that it needs, and an attempt to improve the wind of an elderly person is not nearly as successful as with the younger one. In fact, a middle-aged person reaches the place when there is no use of his trying to go on with an athletic contest because he simply can't get enough oxygen pumped around to his muscles to allow them to contract. It is for this reason that the middle-aged man must be content with less and less strenuous forms of exercise, until finally even walking up and down stairs becomes a little too much.

Presbyterian Societies Honor Pastor and Wife

125 Attend Tuesday Evening Reception in Church

Complimenting the Rev. and Mrs. Emil S. Toensmeier, the Ladies' Aid society and the Women's Social Club of the Presbyterian church entertained a congregational reception, Tuesday evening, in the social room of the church.

The regular business meeting of the Social club was held at 7:30 o'clock preceding the reception. Mrs. Loring Evans was in the chair for the session, and after the routine business, the slate of officers for the coming year was presented by the nominating committee, comprised of Mrs. Eva Dresbach, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. E. O. Crites. The officers chosen were Mrs. Hulse Hays, president; Mrs. B. T. Hedges, vice president; Mrs. Irma Stevenson, recording secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Maxine Dowler, corresponding secretary. The business being completed, the meeting was turned over to the program committee.

For the first number the Monday club trio offered three numbers. "My Love is a Fisherman," by Lily Strickland; "Passing By," by Edward Purcell; and "The Holiday," by Pearl Curran, with the accompaniments played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, at the piano. Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. J. P. Moffitt are members of the trio, and their work was pleasing, showing splendid balance and versatile artistry.

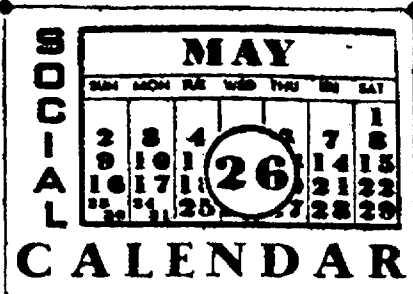

The second number was a unique amateur moving picture show, offered by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Renick, the pictures being taken on their summer vacation of last year. Mrs. Renick pleasantly told of the places visited during the six-day vacation, and explained the different scenes as shown by Mr. Renick. Views taken in Pennsylvania, New York, at Niagara Falls and in Canada were shown.

The last number planned for the evening was a group of songs, presented by Mrs. J. P. Moffitt. She sang, "Sylvia," by Oley Speaks; "An Evening Song," by Hallett Gilbert; and "Bless This House," by May H. Brahe. Miss Clarke played her accompaniments.

Fred Clark was introduced, expressing the sentiments of the congregation to the Rev. and Mrs. Toensmeier, continuing by reading a letter from their friends extending good wishes for the success of their trip East and concluding with the presentation of a gift from their friends of the church. The Rev. Mr. Toensmeier replied with a few well chosen words of thanks for himself and his wife.

The hostess committee served refreshments. The tea table was centered with a large bowl of iris in shades of yellow and lavender, many yellow candles in silver holders casting a pleasant glow over the silver service. At either end of the table silver, coffee and tea services were presided over by Mrs. Charles Dresbach and Mrs. G. H. Colville. Many large baskets and bouquets of garden flowers added a cheerful note to the social room. A delightful social hour was enjoyed by the guests.

Smart for the Bride

A TROUSSEAU hint to June brides from Mary Martin, pretty young radio singer, is this summer suit in white sharkskin, which doesn't wrinkle and cleans well. The blouse is a gaily designed electric blue and white print, gathered in soft folds at the neck, with short puffed sleeves. The skirt is fitted and flares slightly. A wide sharkskin belt sets off a high waistline. The coat fits at the waist with flaring skirt and has short sleeves gathered at shoulder and slit above the elbow. It has two patch pockets. A white halo hat with dark blue ribbon banding, white linen open toe-and-heel sandals and navy leather bag, complete the costume.

Mrs. Fred Howell, and Mrs. Glenn Nickerson.

More than 125 persons were entertained.

Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, of Pinckney street, entertained the members of her contract bridge club at her home, Monday evening. All members were present for the evening's play. When the scores were tallied at the conclusion of the games prizes were awarded Mrs. George Hammel and Mrs. Ralph Curtian. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

The club will meet in two weeks on Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. Hammel, N. Court street.

C. A. C. Dance

The Circleville Athletic club is planning an unusually fine entertainment for its holiday dance, Saturday night in the gymnasium. The club has secured Chuck Selby and his orchestra, of Columbus. The feature of the evening will be Charles Pennington and his swing trumpet.

The dance will be on the social plan, and will continue from 9 o'clock.

Mt. Pleasant Ladies' Aid

Mt. Pleasant Ladies' Aid society will hold its June meeting in Mt. Pleasant church, Tuesday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock. The hostesses will be Mrs. Frank Collett and Mrs. William Drowning. A silver offering will be taken.

Club Enjoys Luncheon to Hear Report

Forty-four members of the Monday Club were present Tuesday at the May Day luncheon held in the New American Hotel coffee shop. This extra session meeting, held for the purpose of hearing the report of the delegate to the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs, was turned into a delightful social session through the efforts of the committee comprised of Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. E. F. Anderson and Mrs. Arthur Wilder. Baskets of phlox and iris decorated the long tables and a tiny bouquet of raspberry shrub lay at each plate. Mrs. Fred Griner, outgoing president, presided, and Mrs. Charles Gerhardt gave the invocation.

Between courses of the luncheon, Miss Eleanor Snyder sang two solos, "Little Old Lady" and "Italian Street Song." The Monday Club trio sang a group of three songs, "My Love is a Fisherman," "Passing By" and "A Holiday." Members of the trio are Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. James Moffitt. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke accompanied both groups.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt read a clipping which referred to Dr. Van Cleef, who spoke before the Monday Club this year. Dr. Van Cleef has been decorated with the Order of the White Rose by the government of Finland for his work in behalf of the Finnish people. Dr. Van Cleef became interested in these people when he was a member of the faculty of the State Teachers' College in Duluth, Minn., and is the author of a number of books about the Finnish people in America and in their own land.

Mrs. G. D. Phillips was presented as delegate to the state convention, held in Akron last week. Mrs. Phillips gave an interesting and inspiring resume of the convention meetings, particularly those which concerned themselves with women's club activities in the state. The Ohio Federation of Women's clubs last year sold $10,000 worth of articles made by the blind, provided for the education of Miss Ophelia Mendoza, the Pan American Fellowship student, gave 17 scholarships to girls in Ohio, besides doing invaluable work in such community projects as safety councils, milk funds, maternity clinics and for delinquent children. Mrs. Phillips had attended meeting concerned with all these projects and brought back much valuable information.

One of the latest projects of the Ohio Federation concerns the planting of a memorial forest of 600 acres in the southeastern part of the state. This will be a part of the Flood Conservancy program sponsored by the federal government. Each club will be asked to pay for the planting of trees in one acre of ground, the trees having been donated by nurseries. Mrs. Phillips reported that the first prize for the Scrapbook went to the Southeastern district, and that the page from the Monday Club, prepared by Miss Clara Littleton, was especially praised by Mrs. Coultrap, district president.

ED BIRDS WIN FOUR IN ROW AS RIZZO SLUGS NINTH INNING HOME RUN

OUTFIELD STAR HITS OFF MOORE

6 to 5 Blow Breaks Up
Hotly-Fought Night
Contest

KANSAS CITY BEATEN

For Record

COLUMBUS, May 26 — Johnny Rizzo sent 2,500 baseball fans to their homes with joy in their hearts last night when he broke up a ball game with the Kansas City Blue with two mates out in the last half of the ninth inning. The score was 6-5.

The blow, a home run smack over the right field wall, was made off the veteran Wilcy Moore, Rizzo, who had hit safely in 34 consecutive games before the Tuesday night fray, had been without a safety when he walked to the plate in that last inning. He had hit two long flies and dropped two bunts in the infield only to be thrown out by the pitcher. He had two strikes when Moore came down the middle with one of his famous "sinkers". Rizzo connected, and the ball game was ended.

The fray was a battle from start to finish with neither Ed Heusser nor Phil Page, who started on the mound, finishing the ball game.

Four in Row

The Birds, who have now won four straight contests, three of them from the fast Milwaukee Brewers, counted two runs in the second and two more in the fifth, while the Birds went ahead 5-4 in the same fray. Another Kasey run in the seventh deadlock the game, in which status it remained until Rizzo's blow. The big outfielder, who was a flop in the training season, needs to hit safely in nine more ball games to pass the league mark for hitting in consecutive contests.

Favorites Remain As P.G.A. Meet Goes On

PITTSBURGH, May 26.—(UP)—Not a favorite was missing from the field today as 65 of this country's golfers engaged in the first round of match play in the National Professional Golfers' association championship.

For the first time in the history of the tournament every "name" golfer, except Walter Hagen who is stalking elephants in India, survived the two trial rounds which were topped by Byron Nelson, the Swedish youngster from Reading, Pa. Nelson, who won the Augusta Masters, tournament in April, scored two successive subpar rounds of 68 and 71 to win the medal by three strokes.

COCHRANE MAY NEVER BE ABLE TO PLAY AGAIN

Detroit Catcher - Manager
Suffers Skull Fracture
When Hit By Ball

WIFE GOES TO BEDSIDE

Bump Hadley On Mound As Accident Happens

NEW YORK, May 26 — (UP) — Mickey Cochrane, 34, manager of the Detroit Tigers and one of the greatest of contemporary baseball players, was in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth's hospital today from a skull fractured by a pitched ball.

Physicians believed that he had a good chance to live, but were not sure that he would. Whether he will ever play baseball again, should he live, was problematical.

His injury recalled baseball's last tragedy — the death of Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop, who was hit by a ball pitched by Carl Mays of the New York Yankees in New York in 1920.

Hadley on Mound

By coincidence, it was a Yankee pitcher who felled Cochrane. Irving (Bump) Hadley, in the fifth inning of yesterday's game between the Yankees and the Tigers, threw a speed ball that caught Cochrane squarely on the temple. The count was three balls and two strikes and Hadley was pitching for the plate. All witnesses agreed that the pitcher was in no way at fault.

It was the second serious accident of the same nature this year. Bob Feller, sensational Cleveland boy pitcher, struck Hank Leiber of the New York Giants with a pitched ball in an exhibition game before the regular season began. Leiber still is in a hospital patient.

Dr. Robert Emmett Walsh, club physician of the Yankees attending Cochrane, scheduled a consultation with Dr. Alexander Nicholls at 10 a. m. today. They decided to do nothing last night because Cochrane was holding his own nicely and resting comfortably.

Dr. Walsh said it still was too early to prophesy the effect of the blow on Mickey's career, nor would he guess at the length of time the catcher would be out of the game. Mrs. Cochrane was at her husband's bedside today, having arrived by plane from Detroit early this morning.

Two men were out and the count was two and three on Cochrane when Hadley tried to push one by him. It was just after 4 p. m., and the ball zipped through the sunlight and shadows that fall across the infield at that hour. Cochrane apparently did not see the ball for he turned his head. It struck him with a sickening thud heard by nearly all of the 15,026 fans. The ball did not bounce but dropped to the ground almost simultaneously with Cochrane whose knees buckled, dropping him flat on his back. Hadley was the first one to his side, then Yankee Catcher Bill Dickey.

Catcher Unconscious

Completely unconscious for several moments, Mickey appeared to regain his senses for an instant, but the players kept him lying on the ground until Dr. Walsh came out from the stands and ordered him moved to the hospital.

Ten minutes after the accident, the game was resumed and when the Yankees won 4-3, the cheering fans did not realize that one of the greatest catchers in baseball might have played his last game.

The late Frank Navin paid Connie Mack $100,000 to get Cochrane from the Athletics in 1934, and Mickey proved he was a bargain by piloting the Tigers to two American league pennants and a world championship in the first two seasons with Detroit. At the death of Navin, Owner Walter Briggs made Cochrane a vice-president of the club.

JANET SHOCK AHEAD

GRANVILLE, May 26 — (UP) — An 18 year old Denison university freshman, Janet Shock of Dayton, today stood out as the class of competitors in the Ohio Women's Golf association's annual medal play tournament.

TERRYMEN DRIVE

WILD BILL OFF

MOUND IN FIRST

CINCINNATI, May 26 — (UP) — Hopes of the Cincinnati Reds of advancing in the National league during a lengthy home stay had faded here today.

The Reds, unable to shake off their early season slump, were beaten 9 to 3 in the opening game of a series with the New York Giants yesterday. The defeat kept them in the cellar and dropped them five full games behind a first division post.

Manager Charley Dressen pulled the wrong card out of his pitching deck when he selected the veteran "Wild Bill" Hallahan to start the contest.

About This And That In Many Sports

Mike Cochrane Rates
"Tough Luck" Trophy

Put Mickey Cochrane down as the tough luck boy of the major leagues — He rates that title if any manager-player ever did — Last year a potentially powerful Detroit crew finished second in the A. L. despite injuries that cut into its ranks time after time — Cochrane was out with injuries and sickness that forced him to leave the club for a large part of the year—Slugging Hank Greenburg broke a wrist and was made useless for almost the entire season — And now Mickey, the fighting Irish catch, who made the Tigers a recognized power in the league, has a concussion that may keep him out for a long while — A thrown ball hurts no matter where it hits you, but one that connects with your konk really does things to you — Never will forget the time that high school coach was teaching a tall and powerful, but wild right-handed pitcher to learn how to pivot and throw to second base to pick a runner off the sack — The Janitor was one of two neophytes chosen to try to slide back into the bag ahead of the throw — If standing before a firing squad is any tougher than that was, then none of it for yours truly . . .

Tubby Vierehome is home after a pretty good year at Dalton, Wayne county, high school — "Boom" was high scorer in the Ohio conference basketball race one year with Muskingum, and did a lot of football playing for the Muskies — The New Concord school is rated highly among colleges of Ohio despite the fact that most of the schools it meets on the basketball court or on the gridiron have much larger enrollments . . .

A summation was made the other day by a football fan of the strength of the 1937 edition of the Ohio State grid machine — The fan, who played college football and rarely misses a game said: "Ohio, from tackle to tackle in the line and as far as manpower is concerned in the backfield, will be mighty, but when it comes to alertness and ability to take advantage of breaks it will be found lacking" . . . There'll be some sweet football played in the big horseshoe next fall, so our advice is "Get your reservations in early to Mr. Henry D. Taylor, in charge of football tickets at the university" . . .

Boy, give Mr. Johnny Rizzo (not related to the fighter, Johnny Risko) a bunch, yea verily, a big bunch of orchids for the Ruthian smash he clouted to win a thriller for the Birds last night under the incandescents, or Candescents, or is it a horse? — Mr. Rizzo, smacking out a safety in 34 consecutive games, had trudged plateward with nary any fruit for his efforts against the all too difficult Kasey Blues — There were two out, the score was tied 5-4, and Wilcy Moore was the opposing hurler — Mr. Rizzo, prompt and with much gusto, lofted the tiny white sphere over the far distant orchard wall to break up a fray, and continue his hitting streak — Yea, he did a noble piece of work . . .

VAN MUNGO PUTS

FOG ON PIRATE

BASEBALL TEAM

NEW YORK, May 26 — (UP) — Winning pennants in April and May is an old Pittsburgh custom. In the last 10 years the Pirates have won only one flag and they won it in October. So a lot of the old-timers weren't excited when the Pirates won 14 out of their first 17 games this year and stole a lap on the National league field.

Already the Pirates are fading under pace-setting strain. Their long lead has dwindled and today three contenders snapped at their heels — the Giants, two games back, the Cardinals, 2½, and the Cubs, 3½.

Van Mungo, re-instated after Saturday's brawl in a St. Louis hotel, handed the Pirates their third straight defeat yesterday by pitching Brooklyn to a 2-1 triumph. Mungo held the Pirates to six hits and won his fifth game. Woody English's double, Stripp's bunt and Mungo's infield out scored the winning run. Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn manager, was banished for the third time this season for protesting Umpire Magerkurth's decisions behind the plate.

YESTERDAY'S HERO — Van

Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn ace, who came back after his $1,000 fine for breaking training rules Saturday and engaging in a fight with teammates, to pitch a 6-hit game and beat Pittsburgh 2-1.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THE RUFFING FINESSE
MOST PLAYERS think of a finesse as involving a lead toward some relatively high card and then refraining from playing it. That is so of any finesse at no trump, but in suit play it is just as much a finesse if you lead a card toward your trumps and take a discard on it in the hope that the first defender playing to the trick held a high card which was out. This usually is known technically as a "ruffing finesse."

trick. He cannot afford to lead trumps at once with the controlling one held by the opponents, so, on the theory that West was not leading away from the spade K, the spade Q was led to the second trick. East refused to cover, so South discarded a losing diamond. Had East covered, South could have trumped and entered dummy with a club to toss a diamond on the spade J. Had West been in a position to trump this, the play still would have been the proper one, for in any event the three diamonds would have been captured as soon as the opponents gained the lead.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)
Here North started the bidding with 1-Spade, East passed, South called 2-Hearts, North 2-No Trumps, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.
The spade 7 was led against this contract, which the declarer won with the spade A. The declarer sees that he has three losing diamonds and must lose one trump

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)
How should South try to make an absurd contract of 7-Spades on this deal after West's lead of the diamond 3?

1,200 WORKERS LEAVE FACTORY IN CALIFORNIA

Canton - Massillon Area Hit
With Strike Ordered At

here and one in nearby Massillon. The Canton manufacturing employ 8,000 workers, the Massillon plant, 5,000.

S. W. O. C. leaders withheld comment until after a conference at 3 p. m. in Youngstown, O. The session was called when executives of the Inland Steel Corporation announced in Chicago they would not sign a union contract.

Spokesmen for Republic, the nation's third largest steel producer, estimated the number of pickets at Canton plants at "between 300 and 400," and the number at Massillon as 150.

They said the plants already closed had been ordered shut down in accordance with the company's frequently-announced intention of suspending operations "until civil authorities clear the streets and make it possible for our men to return peacefully."

RICHMOND, Cal., May 26 — (UP) — The opening fight in a nationwide campaign to force Henry Ford to recognize the United Automobile Workers of America was started at the Richmond Ford assembly plant today when approximately 1,200 workers voted unanimously to go on strike.

The workers demanded national recognition of their union by the Ford Motor company.

Frank Slaby, business representative of the U. A. W. A., local 76, who announced the vote, said that this would not be a sit-down strike.

It was reported that about 25 workers, said to be non-union employees, sat outside the hall when the vote of the night crew was taken after they went off shift early today.

Union officials immediately assigned pickets to posts around the Richmond plant and sent others to San Francisco to picket the Ford plant there.

Eight Demands Made
The union was said to be preparing eight separate demands to be made on the employers.

All were not announced immediately, but they included reinstatement to their former jobs of two men who had been active in a sit-down strike at the plant on April 23.

The union charged these men had been "shuffled around the plant and given disagreeable jobs until one of them had been forced to quit."

The strikers said that the company was fostering a company union and permitting officials of this union to distribute leaflets on company time.

They said that "utility men" who had been promised to take the place of workmen who were ill or absent from the line had not been provided and that this extra work was forced on the other workers.

Ready to Stay Out
The union leaders announced that the workers were prepared to stay out on strike until the company grants recognition of the union.

Approximately 35 maintenance engineers and maintenance workers, who perform cleanup jobs at the plant, were given special permission to pass through the picket lines. All others will be excluded, union officials said.

The workers on the day shift previously voted to go on strike but the action was declared illegal in that the night crew had not, at that time, had an opportunity to ballot.

Police were prominent around the union hall when the men gathered to vote early today but there was no trouble or sign of disorder.

conditions, and sending six-hourly reports day and night to Moscow on the weather. Their researchers are to aid in establishing an eventual Moscow-United States airplane service.

For days, the planes, fueled and loaded, had waited at the Arctic base on Rudolf Island, 560 miles from the pole, for favorable weather.

At 11:15 last night radio exchanges between Rudolf Island and the polar camp showed conditions good and the great all metal planes took off. They had nine tons of supplies and a complement of 20, including correspondents for Pravda, official Communist party newspaper, and Izvestia, official government organ—the first newspapermen to cover the North Pole.

Vassily Molokov, who has won the title "hero of the Soviet Union" by his Arctic flying, was at the controls of one plane, with Anatol D. Alexeyev and I. I. Mazuruk piloting the others.
